A Newark Catholic school is still trying to offer affordable education

"Since 2007, Christ the King Preparatory School in Newark has offered families an affordable Catholic high school education by having local businesses pay the school for students' office work one day a week. But the economic downturn is complicating school officials' efforts to sign up businesses at $25,000 a year, an amount that covers four students each working for the business one day a week. The school is part of the national 22-school Christ the King, or Cristo Rey, network of schools. (Video by Jeff Diamant/The Star-Ledger)"

MAYOR'S VISIT

Newark Mayor Cory Booker addresses CTK Prep students in the classroom

The Honorable Cory Booker, Mayor of Newark, spent time with Christ the King Prep students and invited them to take full advantage of the opportunity given them at Christ the King. He shared with them how education, discipline, faith and hard work has helped him achieve his goals. He then challenged them to use their education to serve others and give back to their communities. Finally, he encouraged them to use their education to help them realize their dreams and make the world a better place.

A WORD FROM OUR INTERIM PRESIDENT

After attending The White House Summit on Inner-City Children and Faith-Based Schools, Fr. Glynn wrote "Cristo Rey schools have become educational and cultural assets to the cities in which they exist and are providing profound life-transforming experiences for the students enrolled. We are in the midst of creating here in Newark a Cristo Rey School, Christ the King Prep, to become such an educational and cultural asset for the City of Newark and a life-transforming experience for the youth of Newark." This work of creation continues as we celebrate with heartfelt gratitude Father Glynn's accomplishments and leadership.

During our search for a new President, which is ongoing, I have been asked to serve as both Principal and Interim President. I am honored to serve in this capacity. Please continue to keep Christ the King Prep in your prayers; and if you find yourself the neighborhood, I would love to introduce you to our students and staff and show you around 'The School that Works' in Newark.

Kevin Cuddihy, M.Ed., P.D
